2. For the UN Secretary-General to make greater use of his powers under article 99 of the UN charter to set the of states have indicated strong support for reforming the penholder system including in a June 2018 draft note from Russia, and a letter of 13 November 2018 from the elected and incoming members of the Council. The United Kingdom has itself taken some steps to share the pen on certain issues like Sudan.
3. For the UN Security Council to adopt more open and inclusive working methods: sharing out drafting responsibilities with the non permanent members and providing greater opportunities for engagement with civil society and non mechanisms for regional and international bodies to work together - with the African Union on Peacekeeping, with state groups.
the G7 on reducing carbon emissions - should be strengthened.
